Judge Jos. Bigler, of Paducah, was in Hickman, Tuesday, on business.

Mr. W. T. Buckner, of Charleston, Mo., is visiting Hickman.

Miss Lou Powell left Monday for a visit to Cairo.

Mr. T. J. Atkins, Grand Patriarch of the L. O. O. F. of Kentucky, visited Hickman this week, in the interest of that order.

Elder Clark, of the Hickman Baptist church, has been holding a protracted meeting at Troy, Tenn.

The Dyer County Fair will begin at Dyersburg on Tuesday, October 10th, 1882, and continue five days.

Mr. James Neely and Judge Steele, of Fulton, each lost a little child last week.

Mr. Williamson Price, one of the best millers of Lake county, died, at his home in that county, July 24th.

Seventy-two new cases of yellow fever at Brownsville, Texas, and two at Pensacola, is the latest news.

A Georgia firm sells watermelons at a cent a pound. They ought to always be sold by weight.

Mrs. Hollie Turner, returned home Wednesday, from an extended visit to relatives in upper Kentucky.

Mrs. J. F. Johnson, of Nashville, and Miss Mattie Wines, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., are visiting the family of Mr. John Cassidy.

The Campbell brothers, desperadoes of Caldwell county, Kentucky, were smoked out of a house by a mob and killed with bullets. One of the desperadoes was killed.

Every pump warranted to be effective and not to rust or spill the water.

RICH & LOWE WOOD PUMP CO., Hickman, Ky.

Four bushels and thirty pounds are ordinarily reckoned by the miller as the amount of wheat necessary for a barrel of flour.

Government engineers have been engaged this week making surveys at Hickman, preliminary to river improvements at this point.

Messrs. S. B. Allen, John T. Mann, and H. T. Wood, young gentlemen from Brownsville, Tenn., are visiting Hickman, this week.

Mr. D. L. Goldberg has removed his silversmith shop from the Post-office building to Mrs. Schaefer's grocery house, where he will be pleased to serve customers in the watch-making and repair line.

The present Congress has a Committee on Civil Service Reform. It has not held a single meeting. Hubbard is a member of the Committee.

A Kentuckian who has observed the weather closely says it has rained every Monday, except two, since the 16th of January.

OLD PAPERS FOR SALE.—We have on hand several hundred papers, suitable for wrapping paper, which we will sell at 50c per hundred.

Fulton and vicinity are well represented at the court house this week, many citizens of that end of the county being called here on jury service, witnesses, &c.

Mr. W. B. Jacy, agent for W. W. Lyons & Co., celebrated Anderson county whiskeys, of Louisville, was visiting Hickman this week.

Col. Tom Poore has moved from Clinton to Frankfort, Ky., says the Clinton Democrat, for the purpose of accepting a position in the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Mr. A. B. Cook, of Lake county, has been appointed traveling agent for the Dixie Oil company. Mr. G. W. Jones, of Hickman, the old agent for the Dixie, has accepted a position for the St. Louis oil mills.

Mr. Chas. Thomas, Commonwealth's Attorney, is in attendance on the Fulton circuit court, vigorously representing the State. He was absent the first day of the term, because of sickness in his family. He is remarkable for prompt and vigilant attention to the duties of his office.

Yellow fever is gaining better foothold. New cases are reported at Pensacola. Montgomery and other points are quarantined close against New Orleans and Pensacola. The scourge in Brownsville, Texas, is fearful. At some places a perfect panic prevails.

The two cases before the present term of the circuit court which attract most public attention, the case of the Commonwealth vs. Albert Talliferro, Woods & Co., vs. Meadows & Lee which involves transactions in "fatness," have not come on for trial yet. The latter case was being argued yesterday.

The Union City Swingers have ball club challenged and played the Hickman Tam Hammerlows, Tuesday. The score stood 34 to 20 in favor of Hickman. The boys of each club are under 15 years of age. By general consent, J. Tim Walton, acted as nurse to the Tam Hammerlows on the occasion.

The Walton White Stockings of Troy, and the Square Deals of Hickman, had a match game of base ball at Hickman, Monday, in which the Waltons defeated the Square Deals by a score of 11 to 14. Neither of these clubs are much in practice, but were able to play a fine game. The Square Deals played the Waltons last Saturday at Troy, and beat them 25 to 10.

A man was drowned from the wrecking boat Salvor No. 2, Sunday last, while the Salvor was engaged with the wreck of the ill-fated Gold Dust. They had raised one of the wheels of the Gold Dust and had it suspended with chains, when the chains broke and the whole structure precipitated back into the river. The man drowned was a workman on the Salvor, and further particulars are not known.

THE COURIER this week presents to its readers a truly beautiful piece of poetry from the pen of Mrs. Ella Collins, of Fulton, this county. There is pure, genuine poetic thought in these lines—in depth of soul and finish of sentiment, rarely found in the verses of local contributors. THE COURIER is ever ready to pay homage to such gifts, and hopes to hear from her again.

Potato Onions.

Any one wanting the genuine Potato Onion, call at J. W. ROGERS'S.

SPARKING AT UNION CITY.—The Tennessee candidates for Governor are to speak in Union City on Sept. 2. Special excursion tickets will be sold on the railroad at five cents per mile, round trip, going on regular train in the morning, and after regular running train goes in to Hickman, it will be sent back to Union City, leaving there at 8:30 and returning to Hickman same evening.

Callisthenes Department and Dancing.—I will organize a Dancing Class at Brown's Hall, on Saturday next, at 8 o'clock P. M.

RE-SEARCY.—An Re-enactment of the I. O. O. F. was re-enacted in Hickman, Tuesday night, and the officers installed by Grand Patriarch T. J. Atkins, of Paducah, and assisted by Bros. Bigler and Williamson.

The following are the officers: W. L. McCutchen, C. P. R. M. McHenry, H. P. J. W. Corman, S. W. R. Case, Treas. R. C. Bailey, Sec'y. R. M. McHenry, Dep. G. P.

The Re-enactment meets every other Thursday night commencing with August 31st.

Mrs. Smith, wife of Mr. William Smith, residing on the Dyerburg road, one mile from town, died Tuesday morning from a congestive chill. Her death was a great surprise to her family and nearest neighbors.

If you want a protector against the Fire, get one of these Ponca Pumps of RICH & LOWE WOOD PUMP CO., Hickman, Ky.

Hon. A. R. Boone, Judge W. Robertson, Tice and Smith, of Mayfield; Col. Dick Moss, of Clinton; and Judge Steele, of Fulton, are the visiting lawyers in attendance on the Fulton Circuit Court, this week.

The Fulton Circuit Court continued Monday last, Judge Jas. Campbell presiding. The time of the court to date has been chiefly consumed on Commonwealth cases—whiskey cases, &c. The court will probably be in session the whole of next week. Judge Campbell is not only giving satisfaction, but is winning the highest admiration of our people.

Wool Carding.—Mr. John S. Shepherd has moved his wool carding machine four miles north of Fulton, on the Clinton and Dresden road, where he is prepared to serve customers. He is one of the most trustworthy citizens, and we solicit for him a good business.

MARKETS.—There has been scarcely sufficient transactions in the Hickman produce market this week to warrant quotations.

WHEAT.—Our buyers are paying 83c to 85c, and anxious to get good wheat.

CORN.—Corn has settled down firmly at 85c. The leading markets have dropped one cent the past week, but Hickman holds firm at 85c.

APPLES.—Good shipping apples 85c per barrel.

Prof. R. Searcy, an accomplished teacher of Dancing, proposes to organize a Dancing class at Brown's Hall Saturday next at 8 o'clock P. M. He comes well recommended as an accomplished and successful teacher, and those desiring their children instructed in dancing should avail themselves of this opportunity.

Hon. James H. McKenzie declines the race for Congress on account of his failing eyesight.

It wouldn't surprise us much if the Egyptian war resulted in the freedom of Ireland.

There has been some sharp fighting in the Egyptian-English war the past week. No decisive battles yet.

Mr. Davis, the old member of Congress from the New Madrid, Mo., District, has been re-nominated after a bitter fight. The Bourbon tried to beat him on his river improvement record, but the "rivers" pulled him through with a boom. It will do him fairly argued before farming people.

The Giants at Troy.—Isaac G. Harris, representing the State ticket, and U. S. Senator Jackson, representing the State credit ticket, met in joint discussion, at Troy, Tuesday Sept. 5th. These are the real leaders in the Tennessee Democratic fight. Gov. Harris is one of the finest and ablest political debaters in the South, and the low-taxers will be represented in their best view. Of Senator Jackson's ability, we know nothing, but presume by his position that he is a powerful disputant. The Republican fight will, doubtless, be, to elect Hawkins.

McCracken was the only county in the Purchase that gave a majority for the school and the election of the State needs its benefit more.—[Courier Journal.]

The sneer contained in the above paragraph is unwarranted by the facts. The people of the purchase are as intelligent and bright as those of any portion of the agricultural population of the West, and are as devoted to the cause of education.

Their vote against the 2 cent school tax was because of misapprehension of it, both by the blacks and whites. Just as doubtless was the case in other parts of the State. If an additional 10 cent tax for the cause of general common school education shall soon be proposed to them, we venture to say that it would receive three-fourths of the voters of the Purchase.—[Paducah News.]

Mr. Vannor's prophecy of a "cold and wet August" is met by the New England forecast with the statement that its returns "show the drought to have been abating in its effects, except in Southern Vermont and the northern part of Berkshire county, where it has been comparatively little felt. The general injury has been done to corn, which will be less than half a crop; much has already been cut for fodder. The season has been very unfavorable for tobacco, the great money crop of the section. Reports from forty of the principal tobacco-growing towns in the Connecticut and Massachusetts valleys show that the crop is two or three weeks more backward than usual, with promise of not over a full half crop, and earlier on it says "passions are mostly dried up and much corn are fed at the barns."

One of the Braves.

(Written for the Hickman Courier.) BY MRS. ELLA COLLINS.

[The following lines were suggested, by reading in the Hickman Courier, an account of the heroic preservation of two children by Mrs. Carey of Okeola, during a storm.]

"Who are the bravest and the truest, Let the grand and mighty battles of life, Let the brave fight for the warrior band, And glory in the victor's hand!"

Some are strong of the conqueror's power, On levantine smites of poets down; But daily are tested, rudely along, Nobility unadorned, by a sorbed throng.

Those are the bravest, who cast self aside, Who cling to the right, whatever be the lot; Who court not praise for a deed well done, Nor fear the name of a noble deed.

Such was she who did not fear, Though thunder crashed, to pass and bear, The voice of helpless, childish grief, But risked her life to give relief.

Dark and cruel rose the waves, Telling of a watery grave, Though the storm-lightning dashed, Hope sunk low, high furies dashed.

Round the lonely inmates where, Raged mad tempest and despair, The babe who knew nought but caring, Tossing on the waves of despair.

Smiling lay within her arms, Shading, guiding, loving brother, From an evil to a friend, "Till at last a friendly tree, From the storm a refuge to be.

Then with hands weak and weary, There to wait till it should come, When the storm should cease to roam, Smiling lay within her arms.

Hours dragged by in weary waiting, Still the tempest unabating, Glad round their shelter lay, With and with the storm king raged.

What means at last the shout of gladness, In holy tones of jubilation, Robbing of the painful brain?

No, no, the glad, certain, Bidding sinking hearts rejoice, "Save baby first!" the unselfish cry, "Other women's hearts when help was nigh, And next the brother, leave me last, Joy, joy, all safe, all danger past."

They were not her true friends, who shared to save, From the cruel clasp of an angry wave, Only another, these of a friend, She would give them to the bitter end.

There are brave deeds done on the battle field, There are noble hearts that brighten with you, yield, But nothing was left to an honored name, I leave worthy that I should give of same, Fulton, Ky., Aug. 21st.

HERNICK DUMB.—A Niece of Mrs. W. H. Allen, who lived in Shelby County, died of a fever, leaving a young child.

[Special to the American.] MEMPHIS, Aug. 28.—A strange story comes from the eastern portion of this county of a woman being struck dumb while giving false testimony. The facts as related are as follows: On last Friday a colored man named James Price was on trial before "Judge Allen, a Justice of the Peace, who has an office on the Mason road, between Germantown and Bartlett, Tenn. Price had been beating a number of women in the neighborhood, and Isabella Jackson, a colored woman, was placed on the witness stand to tell what she knew of the matter. She began her evidence, but was soon after asked by the Justice, "Do you not know you are lying?" She answered, "Yes, sir." These words were the last words Isabella Jackson ever spoke. She had appeared quite independent, and to some extent impudent when first put upon the stand. After her last remark a number of questions were asked, but the woman made no reply. Believing her to be shamming, the Justice ordered Constable W. H. Allen to escort the witness from the court-room, but when ordered to follow that officer she did not move. Two men of her own color were then told to carry her out of the room. While in the act of carrying out the woman, it was observed that she was in a helpless condition. She had been paralyzed in every part. Her limbs were motionless, her tongue had no power and it soon became impossible to all present that the hand of the Almighty had been laid heavily upon her. For two hours or thereabouts the woman remained in this helpless state, after which she was placed in a wagon and conveyed to her home. She never moved or spoke after, but on Saturday evening she expired, no autopsy being applied during the interval having availed in affording the slightest relief. The incident is verified by Rev. Mr. Allen, before whom the woman appeared, and also by a number of persons present at the time of its occurrence.

Two candidates for Governor, so far, are Owsley, Knott and Jones. "You take your choice, and cast your votes" in accordance.

Grand preparations are being made at Nashville for the entertainment of the Mexican War Veterans on the 13, 14 and 15th of September.

Mr. Carlisle, of this State, is prominently spoken of as the next Speaker of the House of Representatives, if the Democrats get control of the House.

The history of the First Congressional District for 65 years past, (Col. McKinney, historian) shows that during that period only six conventions to nominate a Democratic candidate for congress have been held, and that with the exception of two terms during the war, the member has always been a Democrat.

The preservation and exhibition of Quince's skeleton, in fact, will be the preservation, in spirit, of Presidential assassination. The bones should be buried out of sight, with all that pertains to the crime.

Rev. Green Clay Smith and Gen. Abner Buford have agreed to discuss the horse question in the Turf, Rod & Gun. The discussion will begin in the September number of the paper. This is a discussion which will stir up universal interest, as it will be ably argued on both sides.

It is stated that no President of the United States has ever been outside the bounds of the country during his term of office. Presidents Tyler and Fillmore, and now President Arthur, made trips from Washington to New York by sea, and were without the strict geographical boundaries for a few hours; but the deck of an American vessel is legally American soil.

Judge Grace, of Trigg; Col. Stone, of Lyon; Mr. Reeves, of Ballard; Capt. Randle, of Fulton; Capt. Allen, of Caldwell; Judge Boone, of Graves; Bigler and Gilbert, of McCracken; Tom Corbett, of Paducah, are the gentlemen whose names are mentioned as aspirants before the congressional convention. We feel authorized to say that Capt. Randle is not an aspirant, and we think it exceedingly doubtful if he would accept the nomination if tendered him.

HICKMAN is causing a profile of a plan and specifications for the improvement of the river and the protection of the banks in front of Hickman, to be made out, to be submitted to the Mississippi River Commission, to encourage the mission to allow appropriations for the work at this point. Mr. F. R. Bellows, an experienced engineer, has charge of the matter. The City Council will, we learn, send a delegation to the next meeting of the River Commission, to present the plan and petition. There appears but little doubt but that an appropriation will be obtained.

Hickman Society Matters.

Mr. Editor: You were kind enough to give me space to develop one of your spicy columns to the benefit of the weak sex, and having like the rest of my sex, a full supply of Mother Eve's propensity am thus led or prompted, to inquire as to the cause of our sudden acquiescence. Now, we ladies of Hickman, although not given to the making of undue demands on our "Lords of Creation," are still not inclined to the "violet order," viz: to waste our sweetest smiles and wits in other words we do not like to be ignored. And while we are willing to accord you together with the rest of your sex, all the honor and divinity, you so well represent. And so accustomed are we to this homage, that we feel like the sensitive plant, completely crushed, at the least touch of suppression. So with the usual pertinacity of our sex, I again implore you to give us a small space in your valuable paper, that we may as individual and independent people, may assert or declare our feelings. There is, however, but one thing we do not allow feeling, a bond which if not acknowledged is nevertheless felt, an undercurrent of brotherly love and sympathy each other in the hour of misfortune. While our sex has been accused of a great lack in such things. Now while we may "all honor and glory" to you, yet we beg to say, to you, that it is now a thing of the past, (if such a thing ever existed) and that we now as a people and sex stand before the world on our own vantage ground, guarded and encouraged by each other, whose interests being likewise being known, no law, and acting on no other principle, than that of universal love for one another. And while we do not allow to be in sympathy with the "women's rights movement," we are yet glad to see of the gradual rise and progress of our sex, and while we have no desire to supplant you in authority, we have some slight ambition, to be acknowledged, people. No longer are we merged in the man, feeling conscious as we do, that we are, as yet, a "power behind the throne," that the day is not far distant, when our star in the ascendant will dawn upon the world, with a light and influence so radiant, that its power will be felt from center to circumference. Until then we will bide our time.

Since looking over the above, I find it so transparent, that I find it difficult to admit the truth, and on the principle "that an honest confession is good for the soul," I confess, that I am a woman, and I endeavor to keep off the enemy by such delusion, (we are said to be good at) with the idea that there is a vast difference between a woman and a man, ready to fly at a moment's warning. So for fear I may hear you shout "rally round the flag boys," I'll now make an unconditional surrender, (as I usually do constitutionally) that is if you will promise to use no other weapon than the tongue; that being our special prerogative we can meet you on equal ground, otherwise it is war to the knife. But I find I am digressing from my original point, as I only intended giving you a "little hint," which to the wise is sufficient, and a few jottings gathered from the wheels of time. Now, and the still, chilly winds warn us to prepare for the wrath to come, we hastily put on our thinking caps, and in a general way, (ever woman's fate) for the advance courier from "dame fashion's realm," announcing in trumpet tones as to what the decree of fashion may work out for them, a thing of beauty which is a joy forever—I'll not puzzle your brains with what will always be to you men, a dead letter, but pass on to our details. Our town is a little dull just now—nothing transpiring to mar the usual harmony. The ladies of the town are waiting, (ever ready) for the usual festivals for which their reputation is known and established. And the young ladies and gentlemen are waiting, (ever ready) for a charming dance, given in honor of Miss Lou Wilson, whom we are all glad to welcome back. The young ladies are in tears over the absence of Judge Murrell, and the sickness of Mr. Liden and Alexander.

We are glad to note the great number of new tarantulas in our town; certainly has developed some charming drives. (For information I'll refer you to Dr. Parker).

Bro. King, I am told, has turned the parlous into a conservatory of flowers, of rare exotics. He is quite a hobby, and now I see with a woman's peculiar aggressiveness, (poor things they can't help it), I find I have repassed sadly on your valuable time, and my only excuse is, that a woman's pen is like her tongue, when once started can't be stopped; and I did not know that you had so much spare time to devote to me, I'd quake with fear and trembling. SCRIBBLER.

What Turner's Organ Says.—The Hopkinsville New Era says: "We would like to know whether Oscar Turner," "the old outlaw," will submit his claims to the test of a Democratic convention. Turner has heretofore paid no attention to the actions of conventions, and has always taken the bit in his teeth and run independent." We are reliably informed that Col. Turner will not submit to the action of this Democratic convention, for the simple reason that it is gotten up for the express purpose of trifling him, and he would stand no chance before it. His friends are not willing that he be sold out in any such manner, and the Committee's action is not endorsed by but very few Democrats in the District, and these few would almost sell their souls to the devil to see Oscar Turner's official head taken off.—[Columbia Beacon.]

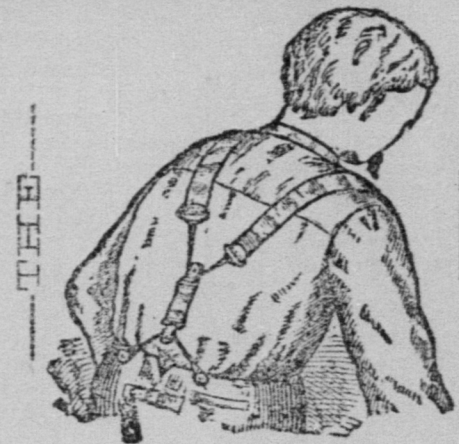

Senator Hear says that every item in the river and harbor appropriation is a perfectly proper one.—[Courier Journal.]

This is a broad and liberal view of the Massachusetts Senator. We have heard so much talk of the outrageous appropriations to little creeks, that we were prepared to admit that the river and harbor appropriations were many unnecessary appropriations made by congress for other purposes, and think which money accomplishes the most good for the people. Every Congress, for instance, appropriates millions and millions of dollars to the building of Federal court houses and custom houses, and never less than $50,000 to $100,000 to the most insignificant ones. Which benefits the fewest of the building of one of these $100,000 court houses, or the making navigable of some little stream, like the Forked-Deer, to carry the farmer's produce to market?

All Absent.—The vicious and costly practice which Gen. Grant introduced of abandoning the seat of the Government during the summer, and of turning over the public business to subordinates, was continued by the fraudulent President, and is now adopted by Gen. Arthur. All the heads of Departments except Mr. Lincoln, who was detained by the new appointments under him, and who will immediately follow in the footsteps of his predecessors, are absent from the capital. So are most of the Assistant Secretaries and many of the experienced officers. For the time being the Administration is carried on by irresponsible clerks, according to the usage of the last ten or twelve years. The conduct of the great interests of the country is left in the inferior hands, or is suspended entirely until the executive officers, who are paid large salaries, may find it convenient to resume their neglected duties.—[New York Sun.]
